

1. Which jailbreaking exemption are you supporting—smartphones/tablets, video game consoles, or both?

Both

2. What's your background (i.e., are you a developer, hobbyist, academic, independent researcher, user, etc.)?

Developer

3. What device do you want to ensure you have the legal authority to jailbreak?

Any iOS Device such as iPod touch, iPhone, iPad.
Every console.

4. Please explain why you want to jailbreak this device. What limitations do you face if you aren't able to jailbreak it? Is there software you couldn't run, computing capabilities you wouldn't have, cool things you couldn't do, etc.?

If i could not jailbreak my iOS device, I would not be able to customize the phone the way that I wanted. Without a jailbreak, its like living in a black and white world where everything is the same, as far as phones go.

5. If you're a developer, did an online application store or console manufacturer reject your app or game? If so, what reasons did they give?

6. Is there anything else you want to tell the Copyright Office?

Users who purchase a game console, personal computer or phone should have the right to customize it to their likings. They should also be able to have the applications they want on the device, not just the ones that the manufacturer wants to allow.
