

Hi my name is eric,

I was wondering if you have last checked our history but our great nation was founded on liberty and justice for all. We have the opportunity and privilege to take something so great and tweak it just because we can. We do not live in a country of strict rules we live in a country that lets us do what we can with such a small opportunity, please just let us have the freedom to enabling "jailbreaking" on video game counsels. Because our government and army fight for our rights to be free, and to limit our freedom just because the companies complained a little then that is just disrespectful to America. You might not take me seriously but I wrote this not to complain but to show you that I had such a small opportunity to show what I think about this and a took it and hoped for the best.

Sincerely,
Eric Murphy

Ps: have you ever loved something so much that no matter what happened in your day you know you would be happy once you got back to it, ya that was my feeling with the act of jailbreaking my PS3, but you took it away from me...can you imagine that thing taken away from you for a year, and finally you can seize the opportunity to get it back I can now sleep a little better at night knowing that I tried making a difference.
