

Name: Dan Bestor

Class of works: I am writing in support of Class #3 (Unskippable DVD Advertising): Audiovisual works released on DVD that contain access control measures that interfere with the ability to control private performance, including the ability to skip promotional materials.

Summary:

Disc name: disney dvd's in general - Tarzan in particular

Every time I watch this movie, Disney forces me to watch previews for other movies. This is forced advertising on a product that I PAID for. Electronics companies would normally respond with added features (like being able to skip these trailers) for their customers when the trailers are present on the DVD, but because of the DMCA, they can no longer legally do this without threat of lawsuits. What kind of backwards law would allow this??
