

Commentator: Fernando Candia
Occupation: Student

I am writing to advocate for the jailbreaking support of smartphones/tablets and video games.

My background in this field is a user.

The devices I enable jailbreaking on are my smart phones and other MP3 devices.

I jailbreak my devices to open test the other great tweak and other software programs that developers have been trying to get approved by the company. When not jailbroken there is a limitation on the experimenting software's that can make the device more enjoyable. When jailbroken there are more shortcuts to rebooting devices, changing themes, moving and hiding applications, these are all things that haven't been used by the company and helps make the device more loved by a user.

Copyright office, you need to stop trying to approve bills and laws to limit the use of personal devices, needs, and freedom. We are democratic country and if such issues where a threat then maybe the people would understand. What should be illegal is how YOU GUYS tell the people what and how to work our devices. This should be ILLEGAL! If I paid for my device I should be able to do what ever I like to it. So stop trying to limit the actions of people and their personal belongings.

Thank You for your time.