If Jailbreaking became illegal i would not be able to use my android device to it's full potential.

For example, in the android market there are apps to which are only available in some contries except my own so when i try to download them it doesn't allow me to do so.

But with my android phone rooted, i can download a root only app which allows me to download apps from other contries such as the epon print app.

Without jailbreaking none of this would be possible and that would increase my work ten-fold.
