

- Which jailbreaking exemption are you supporting—smartphones/tablets, video game consoles, or both?

Both

- What's your background (i.e., are you a developer, hobbyist, academic, independent researcher, user, etc.)?
user and developer

- What device do you want to ensure you have the legal authority to jailbreak?

iphone, ipad, all IOS devices, may be xbox. all android phone are already jailbroken, so never mind on android devices.

- Please explain why you want to jailbreak this device. What limitations do you face if you aren't able to jailbreak it?

Is there software you couldn't run, computing capabilities you wouldn't have, cool things you couldn't do, etc.?

Jailbreaking is for freedom to run whatever I want on my device. And for IOS devices the issue is Apple monopolized the app store. Without jailbreaking I can't download apps from anyone but Apple. It is mostly fine but things like customized home screen and sbsetting available on jailbroken devices make me want those features and want to jailbreak it. I wouldn't mind if there is no jailbreak for my xbox. I just don't feel bad and feel violated if anyone monopolizes any market.

- If you're a developer, did an online application store or console manufacturer reject your app or game? If so, what reasons did they give?

- Is there anything else you want to tell the Copyright Office?

Can you sue Apple for monopolizing app store on IOS devices. If so please do it fast. I wrote an article about it, find it here: <http://itmindblogs.wordpress.com/2011/12/30/app-store-monopoly/>