Comment: I have been playing video games since the Atari 2600, for 35 years. Nowadays, game "museums" -- getting the opportunity to replay games from my youth, and share them with my child -- are a source of joy for me. I would love the opportunity to explore some of the early online / MMO games that I spent so much time on in the past! While other old games can be played on old hardware, or emulators, or even in-browser, there is no other way to play the online games save via a hosted server. Giving a copyright exemption to museums running these servers is the only way to let us experience these classic games. Thank you! *
