I believe that this copyright act is a violation of consumer rights, it allows corporations to have much more control over what people HAVE to buy and can be welded as a huge weapon when a corporation "feels" that there is a threat of some kind. I am not a pirate, I am someone believing that corporations are allowed too many loopholes and too much protection. we need to stop and realize that consumers should be allowed to look at what they are getting closer. for someone to give you a box with a lock on it and tell you that you can keep it and enjoy it for however long you want it just as long as you don't open it, or try to open it is absurd, assuming that you payed for it, you have to have the right to examine it to understand what it is actually doing rather than what you are told it is doing. otherwise the only way we will ever know what is really going on is through places that are payed to test the products. consumers should be able to know and understand what they buy, not fear prosecution for finding out.
