Copyright Office Fees

The Register of Copyrights sets fees for the Office’s services. This circular provides details about the Office’s fee schedule, its services, and acceptable methods of payment. Topics covered include

- Registering a copyright claim
- Recording a copyright-related document
- Searching the Office’s records
- Obtaining copies of records
- Preregistering
- Requesting expedited service
- Requesting reconsideration of a refused claim
- Securing full-term retention of a deposit

The Register of Copyrights has authority under section 708 of the Copyright Act to set fees for specified services provided by the Copyright Office. These services included registering claims to copyright, recording documents, and searching copyright records. The law gives the Register authority to set fees for other services based on the cost of providing them. To adjust fees, the Register must prepare a study for Congress proposing a new fee schedule. The proposed new fees take effect 120 days after delivery of the report unless Congress enacts a law disapproving the proposed fee schedule.

The Copyright Office charges the fees specified below for the services described. A fee list appears at the end of the circular, excluding Licensing Division service fees, which appear in a separate circular, see Copyright Office Licensing Division Service Fees (Circular 76). “Payment of Fees” below provides information about payment methods.

Copyright Registrations

The Copyright Office charges a fee to register copyright claims based on the method you use to apply and the type of work you are registering. An application for copyright registration contains three essential elements: a completed application form, a nonrefundable filing fee, and a non-returnable deposit—that is, a copy or copies of the work being registered and “deposited” with the Copyright Office. Generally, you should prepare a separate application, filing fee, and deposit for each work you submit. In certain situations, multiple works can be registered with one application. For more information about registering multiple works, see Multiple Works (Circular 34).

Electronic Registration

Electronic registration is the preferred way to register basic claims for literary works; visual arts works; performing arts works, including motion pictures; sound recordings; and single serial issues. Electronic registration is also recommended for group registration of serials. Benefits of electronic registration include faster processing times, status tracking, online payment, and the option to upload certain categories of works or to send a physical copy of a work. The standard filing fee for electronic registration is $55 for basic claims. However, the filing fee is $35 if you register one work, not made for hire, and you are the only author and claimant. To access electronic registration, go to the Copyright Office’s website at www.copyright.gov. For information about works made for hire, see Works Made for Hire (Circular 30).

Registration Applications That Must Be Completed Online
You must complete certain applications through the Office’s electronic registration system. These include applications for group registration of contributions to periodicals (GRCP), published photographs (GRPPH), unpublished photographs (GRUPH), newspapers, and applications to supplement or amplify an existing registration (Supplementary Registration). Supplementary registrations to amplify or correct a GATT registration, renewal registration, or group registration for a nonphotographic database must be completed by paper.

Registration with Paper Forms
You can also register using fill-in forms TX (literary works); VA (visual arts works); PA (performing arts works, including motion pictures); SR (sound recordings); SE (single serial issues); and Form SE/Group (group registration of serials). Form CON is a continuation sheet available for applications that require more space than the standard fill-in forms. Complete the form for the type of work you are registering, print it out, sign it, and mail it with a check or money order and your deposit. You can also request blank forms by postal mail. The fee for a basic registration using one of these forms is $85 payable by check or money order. Fees for other registrations submitted by paper may be found below. Credit cards are not accepted for filings on these forms unless the forms are hand-delivered to the Public Information Office. To access forms, go to the Copyright Office website and select Forms under the Law and Guidance tab.

Registration Applications That Must Be Completed on Paper
You must complete certain applications on paper and mail them to the Copyright Office with the appropriate fee and deposit. These include applications to register vessel designs (Form D-VH); mask works (Form MW); renewal of copyright claims (Form RE); and works in which the U.S. copyright was restored under the 1994 Uruguay Round Agreements Act (Form GATT). In addition, some types of group submissions also require paper applications, including daily newsletters (Form G/DN) and automated database updates that consist mostly of content other than photographs (Form TX).

Recordation of Documents
The Copyright Office charges a fee to record documents pertaining to a copyright, such as a transfer of copyright, a will, a license, or a notice of termination. The fee to record a document of any length including no more than one title is $105. Additional titles are another $35 for each group of ten or fewer titles referenced in the same document. When a document is accompanied by an electronic title sheet, additional titles are subject to a reduced fee scale, as shown below. All documents must be filed for recordation in paper form; online filing is not available. For more information about recordation of transfers and other documents, see the Copyright Office’s Circular 12. For details about recording notices of termination, see chapter 2300, section 2310, of the Compendium.
NOTE: The additional-title fee is based on the number of titles in a document, not the number of works. Thus one work known under two titles is counted as two titles. The Copyright Office will verify title counts.

Searches of Copyright Office Records

The Copyright Office charges a fee when its staff searches the Office’s records for information about copyright registrations, renewals, transfers, and other documents relating to the copyright status of works. Upon request, the Office will estimate the total cost of a search. The fee for a search estimate is $200, which is applicable to the search fee. The hourly search fee, including the preparation of an official search report, is $200 with a two-hour minimum.

For general search requests, complete the search estimate form online, call the Records Research and Certification Section at (202) 707-6787, or send an email to copycerts@loc.gov. For litigation search requests, call (202) 707-6787 or send an email to coplitigationsupport@loc.gov (domestic litigation) or copinternationalsupport@loc.gov (international litigation). The Office will not search to determine whether a work similar to a work of interest has already been registered. Such searches are not necessary under copyright law.

NOTE: You can search the Copyright Office’s online database for records created between January 1, 1978, and the present. You can also visit the Copyright Office’s Public Records Reading Room, located in Room LM-404 of the James Madison Memorial Building of the Library of Congress, 101 Independence Avenue SE, Washington DC 20559, to search Copyright Office catalogs, pre-1978 records, and other records. See How to Investigate the Copyright Status of a Work (Circular 22) for details.

Copies of Copyright Office Records

The Copyright Office charges a fee for locating or retrieving records, providing additional certificates of registration, or certifying copyright records. The hourly fee to locate or retrieve nonelectronic records is $200 per hour with a one-hour minimum. The fee to retrieve electronic records is $200 per hour with a half-hour minimum; billing occurs thereafter in quarter-hour increments. Additional certificates of registration are $40 each. The charge for certifying a record is $200 per hour. The certification fee is in addition to fees for other applicable services, such as fees for searches or photocopies. To request copies of Copyright Office records, call the Records Research and Certification Section at (202) 707-6787 or send an email to copycerts@loc.gov. Under certain limited conditions, copies of copyright deposits may be provided. For more information, see Obtaining Access to and Copies of Copyright Office Records and Deposits (Circular 6).

Preregistration

The Copyright Office charges a fee for preregistration. Unpublished works that are being prepared for commercial distribution and that fall within certain classes of works may be eligible. The fee is $140. Preregistration forms must be filed electronically. The Office does not accept preregistration filings on paper, in person, or by regular mail. For more information, see chapter 1600 of the Compendium.
Expedited Services and Special Handling

The Copyright Office charges a fee for expedited registration and recordation services, called “special handling.” Special handling is available if you have a compelling need related to pending or prospective litigation, customs matters, or contract or publishing deadlines. To request special handling, you must provide a signed statement explaining why you need it, and you must include a certification that the details of your request are correct to the best of your knowledge.

The fee for special handling of qualified applications for registration is $800 per claim. There is an additional fee of $50 for each (non-special-handling) claim using the same deposit. The fee for expedited recordation of documents is $550. Special handling fees are not refundable.

The Copyright Office may provide other services on an expedited basis under certain circumstances and with prior approval. For example, the Office may provide expedited searches or copies of Copyright Office records. For more information and instructions, see Special Handling (Circular 10) and chapter 2400, section 2411, of the Compendium.

Requests for Reconsideration (Appeals)

The Copyright Office charges a fee to reconsider a refusal to register a copyright claim. If the Office refuses to register your claim to copyright, it will notify you in writing. After such notification, you can seek reconsideration of the refusal by sending a letter requesting reconsideration and setting forth your objections to the refusal not later than three months after the date that appears on the Office’s written refusal. The cost of a first request for reconsideration is $250 per claim. If registration is again refused, a second request for reconsideration can be submitted. The cost of a second reconsideration is $500 per claim. The Copyright Office’s decision in response to the second request for reconsideration constitutes final agency action. For more information, see chapter 1700 of the Compendium.

Full-Term Retention

The Copyright Office charges a fee for full-term retention of copyright deposits. The Office’s policy is to retain published copyright deposits that have not been selected by the Library for its collections for 20 years and all unpublished deposits for 120 years. If you want to ensure that the Copyright Office’s decision retains your published deposit for the full length of the copyright term, you must pay a fee of $540 to cover processing and storage costs. Send requests for full-term retention to U.S. Copyright Office Attn: Director of the Office of Public Records and Repositories 101 Independence Avenue SE Washington DC 20559-6000

For more information, see chapter 2400, section 2410, of the Compendium.
Payment Processing Service Charges

The Copyright Office charges a fee of $250 for an overdraft of a deposit account; $100 for a dishonored replenishment check for a deposit account; and $30 for an uncollectible or nonnegotiable check.

Other Claims and Services

Fees for other types of services and claims, such as processing secure tests and providing deposit receipts, appear in the fee list at the end of this circular. See section 203.6 of Title 37 of the Code of Federal Regulations for a list of fees for requests related to the Freedom of Information Act. For detailed information about these and other services, visit the Copyright Office website.

Payment of Fees

Depending on the service you receive and the method of its delivery, you can pay by credit card; deposit account; Automated Clearing House (ACH) debit; currency; or check, money order, or bank draft payable to the U.S. Copyright Office. The Copyright Office accepts American Express, Discover, MasterCard, and Visa.²

NOTE: Currency is accepted only when a service is provided in person in the Public Information Office. The Copyright Office does not accept currency by mail and cannot assume any responsibility for the loss of currency sent in payment of copyright fees.

Electronic Services

You can pay by credit card, debit card, or ACH debit for services provided electronically, including electronic registration of copyright claims. To administer payment for electronic services, the Copyright Office uses Pay.gov, a U.S. Treasury Department system for secure processing of payments to federal government agencies. You can also pay for electronic services by debit card or Copyright Office deposit account (see below).

Services by Mail

If you send a service request by postal mail, the only acceptable methods of payment are check or money order payable to the U.S. Copyright Office or a Copyright Office deposit account (see below). If a check received in payment of a registration or recordation filing fee is returned to the Copyright Office as uncollectible, registration or recordation will be delayed until a valid payment is received, and a service charge of $30 will be applied.

Services by Phone or in Person

You can pay for some services by credit card when you request them by phone. Call the Records Research and Certification Section at (202) 707-6787 to use a credit card to pay for additional certificates of registration; copies of documents and deposits; certifications; search and retrieval of deposits; expedited processing; or estimating the cost of searching Copyright Office records.

The Public Information Office accepts credit cards, currency, checks, and money orders in payment of Copyright Office services requested by walk-in visitors. In addition, you can charge fees for on-site use of Copyright Office printers and photocopiers.
Deposit Accounts

An individual or organization can establish a deposit account, make advance deposits into that account, and charge copyright fees against the balance in the account instead of sending separate payments with applications and other requests for services. For more information, see How to Open and Maintain a Copyright Office Deposit Account (Circular 5).

Foreign Checks and Money Orders

All foreign checks or money orders must be redeemable without a service or exchange fee through a U.S. institution, payable in U.S. dollars, and imprinted with American Banking Association routing numbers. Postal money orders and international money orders that are negotiable only at a post office are not acceptable.

Refunds

Payments more than $50 in excess of the required fee will be refunded automatically, but refunds of $50 or less will be made only upon written request.

To cover administrative and processing costs, fees received in conjunction with certain services typically will not be refunded, even when the services cannot be provided. For example, the Copyright Office will not refund filing fees received for basic, supplementary, or renewal registration; for preregistration; or for special handling, whether or not copyright registration or preregistration is ultimately made.

Before making any refund of fees received for nonregistration services, the Copyright Office will deduct an administrative processing fee in an amount equivalent to one hour of the requested service or the minimum fee for the service.
