

The “Resale Royalty Right” is a very bad idea. The Copyright Act is already a very complicated statute loaded with exceptions pushed by special interests. There seems to be absolutely no justification for this proposal except for the fact that a few artists are disgruntled when their art later sells for a higher price than what they got paid for it.