Upcoming Accounting Period Will Be Last Cable Operators Receive Paper SOAs

In an effort to increase efficiencies, reduce costs, and look toward the future, the next cable statement of account (SOA) forms for the 2017/2 accounting period will be the last in which paper forms are mailed to cable operators. Starting with the 2018/1 accounting period, covering January to June 2018, operators will need to access these forms through the Licensing Division website. The Licensing Division now provides two options for submitting SOAs—through the new electronic submission process or by mail. The 2017/1 accounting period was the first in which cable operators could submit electronically, and nearly 700 statements of account were successfully received!

In preparation for this upcoming change, we’ve answered some of the questions you may have about the SOA submission process:

How do I get the cable statement of account forms for the 2018/1 accounting period?
Cable statements of account are available online in two versions: the new electronic-SOA (e-SOA) version available in the Excel format that can be submitted by email and a fillable PDF version that can be printed and mailed to the Division. These statements, both short- and long-form, as well as filing instructions, can be found on the Licensing Division website at https://www.copyright.gov/licensing/sec_m.html.

How will I receive reminders of future submission deadlines?
Reminders about future SOA deadlines will be communicated through The Licensing Connection (TLC) newsletter and email blasts. Deadlines can also be found on the Licensing Division website.

How does the electronic-SOA submission process work?
The Licensing Division has released Excel versions of both the short- and long-form statements of account to facilitate this new process. Following the instructions on the form, you fill out the Excel spreadsheet the same way you would your paper forms and electronically sign with an “s-signature” (e.g. /s/ John Smith). Once you complete and sign the form, you can save it in the Excel format and submit it by email to copilcisco@loc.gov. After you submit the form, you will receive an email acknowledging receipt and later a digitally-signed and stamped PDF copy of the statement for your records from the Licensing Division.

What will I need to submit for future filings?
The options for submitting your SOA have similar but slightly different requirements.

• If you submit your SOA electronically, you must email, as an attachment, the Excel file of your SOA with an s-signature and your remittance advice. You will also need to email or fax the RA to our Fiscal Section (see below). Do not print and mail the electronic SOA form to the Office.

• If you print and mail the PDF version, you must send the SOA with an original handwritten signature, a photocopy of the SOA, and a copy of the remittance advice (RA). You must also email or fax the RA to our Fiscal Section (see next question for more information).

Is it necessary to submit the remittance advice?
Whichever process you use to submit your SOA, you are required by federal regulations [37 CFR §201.17(k)] to submit a remittance advice (RA) with your statement of account. The RA can be accessed through our website at https://www.copyright.gov/licensing/remittance-advice.pdf.

In addition to including the remittance advice with your SOA, you must also email a copy of the RA to licfiscal@loc.gov or fax it to our office at 202-707-0905. Failure to submit the RA may delay the acceptance and processing of your statement of account and will result in additional correspondence from the Licensing Division.

Founded in 1978 to administer the statutory and compulsory licenses established by the U.S. Copyright Act of 1976, the Licensing Division supports the U.S. Copyright Office’s mission “to administer the nation’s copyright laws for the advancement of the public good; to offer support and services to authors and users of creative works; and to provide expert impartial assistance to Congress, the courts, and the executive branch agencies on questions of copyright law and policy.”

While its primary work has remained consistent throughout the last four decades, the Licensing Division has continued to adapt and grow to accommodate the technological transformations and innovations shaping the copyright landscape. When established in 1978, the division was responsible for four licenses. Today, it’s seven! The division collects royalty fees from cable operators for the retransmission of broadcast programming (section 111), from satellite carriers for secondary transmissions (section 119), and from manufacturers and/or importers distributing digital audio recording technologies (DART) (section 1003). In addition to royalties, cable operators and satellite carriers are required to pay filing fees with their semiannual statements of account. The division also administers the statutory license for secondary transmissions of local television programming by satellite carriers (section 122). Finally, the Division processes and examines notices for the statutory and compulsory licenses that allow for making ephemeral recordings (section 112), public performance of sound recording by means of a digital audio transmission (section 114), and making and distributing phonorecords (section 115). While these latter licenses require filing fees, royalties are handled outside of the division between the relevant parties.

As our fifth decade commences, we are looking to the future and plan to advance and improve our online presence and submission processes, continue to provide transparency and access to our constituents, and increase our outreach efforts to the public.

January 1, 2018, will mark the fortieth anniversary of the Licensing Division!

Division Staff Members Celebrate Thirty Years of Federal Service!

2017 marks an important milestone for two of our hard-working and dedicated licensing examiners! Carol Garrett and Chris Steve both celebrate thirty years of federal service, and in honor of their service, are the subjects of this month’s Employee Spotlight.

How did you earn your thirty years of federal service?
First, let me say all of my thirty years of federal service has been at the Library of Congress and with the Copyright Office. I began my federal service career as a mail clerk in the Copyright Office mailroom. I worked there for six months then was transferred to the Registration and Numbering Unit, where I stayed for five years. I then became a technician in the Examining Division in the Performing Arts Section and stayed there for three years. Then I came to the Licensing Division as an examiner and have been here for twenty-two years as a senior examiner.

What has been your favorite role during this time?
I don’t have a favorite “role.” I have enjoyed all of the positions that I have held here. I have learned so much from each one that helped me to grow and achieve the next level in my journey. I also served as a union rep on various Office and Library committees, which has allowed me to meet staff throughout the agency.

What do you find most interesting about your position in the Licensing Division?
New technology and interacting with both internal and external customers. Everything and everyone!!!! We’re family.

What’s a fun fact most people don’t know about you?
I am a gospel song writer, and I have two songs that have been recorded. Also, I am the family comedian.

What do you like to do when away from the office?
I LOVE to shop. I’m a shoe lover—my saying is “buy the shoes and the outfit will come.” I love to draw, and I love to do different arts and crafts, floral arrangements, and special events. I also love to do interior decorating and to decorate for the holidays, especially Christmas! But mostly I love spending time with my family (my sister, who works here at the Library and in the Copyright Office as well; my daughter, who is a special needs educator with the Prince George’s County school system; and of course my mom, who loves to travel the world).
Did you know?

Have you received a Notice of Intention (NOI) from a music service provider and wondered what this means for you?

Generally, there is nothing you need to do as a recipient of an NOI. An NOI informs you that a service plans to use your composition pursuant to provisions of the Copyright Act’s compulsory license (17 USC §115) and regulations (37 CFR §201.18 and §210). If your name and address are current in the copyright record, then you should expect to be paid royalties by the licensee for such use at a later date. However, it is possible that a service provider (Spotify, Amazon, Harry Fox, etc.) is seeking a license for a song that has the same name as yours and you were sent the NOI by mistake or out of an abundance of caution if the agency isn’t completely sure which song with that title is the one being used. If you have any questions, we recommend contacting the entity that has sent you the NOI.

You can find out more information about the compulsory license on our website at https://www.copyright.gov/licensing/sec_115.html and in Circular 73, https://www.copyright.gov/circs/circ73.pdf.
