Comment:

I am in charge of teaching materials for a biology department at a major university. The department owns an extensive collection of 16mm sound films on various aspects of our field that date from the 1960's. I would like to have these works transferred to DVD because the university no longer provides 16 mm sound projectors in classrooms, and because the physical integrity of the film is deteriorating. I have been unable to locate copyright holders for most of these films, apparently because the number of firms dealing in educational media has imploded over 4 decades. The campus media center will not transfer these works without authorization.
