The comment that orphan works are "undead art" is true. You can't get rid of it, you can't use it, and if you tangle with it, the law will get involved—kind of like zombies. Information is only classified as information if it can be shared. If orphan works cannot be made available as information for people to use, they are useless.

-- END OF COMMENT --