

I emailing you in regards to the growing concern on the regulations being placed to prevent > the photocopying of published works which includes that which is related > to family and genealogical information especially when the author has > died or cannot be located. There should be no limitations put on these documents if the are looking for ancestry info. The people have a right to know who they are from and I believe our ancestors would not want us to forget them.

Sincerely, Pamela Clark