

To Whom It May Concern:

Whatever rule changes you consider, please consider that the songwriter, the “first one working and the last one paid” is on the way to becoming an endangered species. If songwriters, who’s creations are at the core of all digital music models, cannot make living, forget about a killing, then the entire system is woefully out of balance and destined to crumble.

Sincerely,
Bob Regan